RESULTS OF A WEB-BASED HEALTH SURVEY OF RETIRED RACING GREYHOUNDS

In 2007 we published an article with the results of a web-based survey where 714 Greyhound owners participated and helped us to collect information about prevalence of different diseases and causes of death in retired racing Greyhounds. Owners could answer the survey for every Greyhound that they had owned since January 1, 2005.

Results of a Web-Based Health Survey of Retired Racing Greyhounds

Linda K. Lord, Jill E. Yaissle, Liliana Marin, and C. Guillermo Couto

As more retired racing Greyhounds enter the pet population, the results of this study will help educate veterinarians and owners about the most prevalent diseases in the breed.

The most commonly reported groups of diseases or disorders were:

- Skeletal (232 dogs, 30%)
- Skin (197 dogs, 28%)
- Digestive (132 dogs, 18%)
- Cancer (94 dogs, 13%)
- Endocrine (85 dogs, 11.9%).

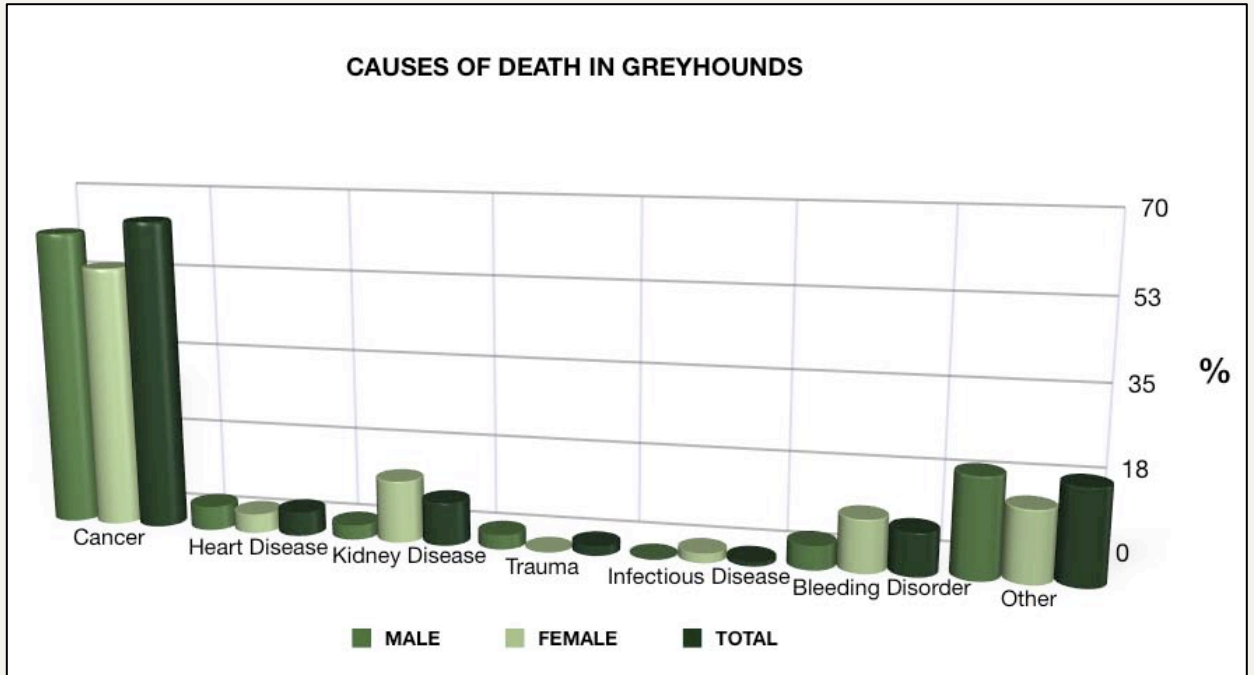

The results showed that the mortality rate for Greyhounds within the 2-year period was 15% (113 of 747 died). The most common cause of death reported was cancer (66 dogs, 58%), and the most common type of cancer listed as the cause of death was osteosarcoma (28 dogs, 25%).

Osteosarcoma was the most prevalent form of cancer reported, with a prevalence of 50% (95% CI 34.2–54.2) for dogs with cancer and 6% (95% CI 4.3–7.6) for the overall population.

We want to thank all the participants of the survey for their response to our study. Their support helped us generate very important information to continue to understand this wonderful breed.

THANK YOU ALL!!
